And, of course, you must correct any spelling, grammar, etc. the Canadian in the 6:00 position, and finally the jump, in which he bounced off the boards and came down in a tumbling position. Despite his lengthy effort in the trials, he never competed in an Olympics, most likely due to the CKC's decision to compete in the 1956 Olympic Winter Games. He returned to the Olympics once again at the 1960 Winter Olympics in Squaw Valley, California, and Canada qualified to compete in the intermediate sprint, then in the pursuit, jumping, and the cross-country. In the intermediate sprint, he placed 4th to lose the gold by 1.43 seconds to compatriot Art Murray. That same year, he competed in the pursuit at the 1960 World Championship, and in the 1956 World Championship. Although he never competed in an Olympics, Curlingm appeared on the cover of the January 22, 1957 issue of Life magazine, alongside Olympic teammates Bill Wilson and Don Duguid, in a story titled "The Curlingm (sic) of World Friendship". In the story, Wilson was quoted as saying that Curlingm was "the best all-around athlete Canada has ever produced." In 1959, Curlingm was elected to the Canadian Olympic Sports Hall of Fame. Later years Following the Olympics, he returned to his job as a teacher. He was a member of the Canadian Curling Association until 1964, when he was elected to the position of a senior member. He was also a member of the Canadian Curling Association Committee, a member of the Executive Committee of the Canadian Olympic Sports Hall of Fame, and a member of the Canada Cup Committee. Curlingm was a great fan of the sport, and often discussed curling with other members of the Canadian Olympic Sports Hall of Fame. He died in Vancouver on March 4, 1984.
